Tickets would go on sale from the 30 Bass outlets in Adelaide from the opening of business — either 8.40 a.m. or 9, depending on the opening hours of the business houses within which the outlets were located.

"The tickets will also be available through the 16 Bass credit telephone lines reached by telephoning 213 4777," Mr Drewer said.

"Ticketing has been arranged so people in WA and SA won't be disadvantaged by the differences in time zones.

"Tickets have been allocated in each State, depending on the numbers sold last year.

"Because most tickets were sold in SA last year, most tickets will be made available in SA, so if people from SA want to telephone a Bass outlet in Sydney, they will be competing for tickets in a smaller allocation than in Adelaide.

"Additionally, the tickets have not been allocated in blocks. The tickets have been divided in all of the stands throughout all of the price ranges and viewing areas so that tickets sold in, say, SA or NSW will be no better or worse than those sold in other States."

IS AUSTRALIA PROTECTING NAZI WAR CRIMINALS?

In the years immediately following World War II, Australia welcomed thousands of decent, skilled, enthusiastic immigrants from all over the world.

But among them, came hundreds of Nazi collaborators, some escaping punishment for crimes against humanity.

Successive governments from the 40s to the 70s have denied their existence, but the facts are irrefutable.

Today, Nazis hold positions of influence and authority in Australia.

In some cases we know who they are.

This painstakingly researched, five part radio series, produced and presented by Mark Aarons, will probably make you very angry. Certainly it raises questions that demand to be answered.

DEPARTMENT OF INDUSTRY, TECHNOLOGY AND COMMERCE

National Biotechnology Program — Research Grants Scheme
GRANTS FOR 1987

CALL FOR APPLICATION FOR GRANTS

Researchers working in the area of biotechnology are invited to make application for grants under the National Biotechnology Program — Research Grants Scheme.

The National Biotechnology Program was established in 1983 to promote the development of biotechnology industries through the support of selected high quality biotechnology research and development programs which hold the greatest promise for commercial development in Australia.

The National Biotechnology Program — Research Grants Scheme will support research proposals in the areas of:

- Genetic engineering
- Cell manipulation and culture
- Enzyme applications and fermentation technology

The priority areas for commercial exploitation under the Scheme are as follows:

- Plant agriculture
- Animal production
- Water treatment
- Biotechnology support
- Human pharmaceuticals and health
- Food processing
- Alternative uses of agricultural surpluses

These are indicators of the priority application areas adopted. However research proposals of sufficient quality in other areas will be considered.

The Scheme is intended to establish effective relationship between industry and basic biotechnology research activities in academic institutions, government agencies and other Australian research institutions in order to develop a commercially viable biotechnology industry in Australia. Researchers in the following types of organisations in Australia are invited to apply for grants:

- Industry
- Academic Institution
- Research institutes
- Government agencies

It is expected that a small number of substantial awards will be made available to enable research work to be carried out by research teams of first class standard.

Recommendations on the allocation of funds for biotechnology research and development are made to the Minister for Industry, Technology and Commerce by an Advisory Committee. Preference will be given to research proposals which involve substantial commitment by Australia-based industry. Proposals which involve strategic research of demonstrable relevance to future primary or secondary industry developments in Australia will also be considered. Evidence of the nature and extent of the commitment to the proposed research by Australia-based industry is required.

APPLICATION FORMS and associated documentation are available from the Director, Biotechnology Section, Department of Industry, Technology and Commerce, Canberra, ACT 2600. Further information may be obtained by telephoning (062) 73 3944.

APPLICATIONS should be forwarded to the above address no later than 30 May 1986. Late applications will not be considered.

BRANCH MANAGER

STANDARD CHARTERED FINANCE is expanding its activities in the competitive field of "financial services" as part of the Group's move into the Australian banking, investment and stock-broking arena.

A vacancy exists for a person to manage our Adelaide operation.

The person we seek must have finance or banking/banking experience at a senior level, coupled with strong sales experience in commercial lending. A successful record in people management is essential and a wide breadth of product knowledge is desirable. It is anticipated that the appointee will be at least 30 years of age.

The job requires a person who can manage an effective unit which will contribute to profitability of the Company. The very competitive nature of the industry demands that the appointee has an acute sense of business development and marketing acumen, as well as the capacity to run an office efficiently on a daily basis. It is important that the appointee reflects a professional image for the organisation.

This is a career position, offering excellent opportunities for someone with the will to succeed in a challenging environment. We offer competitive remuneration and industry benefits.

Applications which will be treated in the strictest confidence should be addressed to:

The Personnel Manager
STANDARD CHARTERED FINANCE LIMITED
G.P.O. Box 2622,
Sydney, NSW 2000

Initial enquiries may be made to Jean Taylor on (02) 2027 (or (02) 29 3632 between 5 and 6 pm).

Axe BLF in SA, say employers

The SA Employers' Federation yesterday called on the SA Government to deregister the State branch of the Builders Laborers' Federation.

By Industrial Reporter BRUCE HOGBEN

The call followed what was described as a loss of confidence by developers and investors in SA while BLF disruption has continued.

The federation's executive director, Mr M. G. O'Callaghan, said the Government had no option but to act because of continuing fears SA could become the focal point for Australia-wide BLF activity.

There was concern the BLF could be moving towards establishing a cartel to pursue traditional militant BLF objectives with a small number of sympathetic unions.

Mr O'Callaghan's statement followed a failure by unions yesterday to discuss possible union action against the BLF.

The United Trades and Labor Council secretary, Mr J. K. Lesses, said it had not been possible to organise a full meeting of the unions yesterday, as requested on Thursday by the Building Workers Industrial Union and Plasterers' Federation.

He said the UTLC was concerned the Federal Government's deregistration move against the BLF dealt with an "extraordinary" situation in Victoria, NSW and the ACT.

He was concerned SA employers were using the situation "to attack the trade union movement and to justify punitive action against a registered union."

Any move against an SA union "sets a dangerous precedent, importing into SA industrial disputes originating in other States," Mr Lesses said.

The Minister of Labor, Mr Blevins, last night described Mr Callaghan's deregistration call as a typical federation statement, bearing little relevance to reality.

"I can only refer them to the Master Builders' Association, which does know something about the problem," Mr Blevins said.

The MBA's executive director, Mr G. P. Gasteen, said MBA building construction members did not see the present situation justifying a call for deregistration. The MBA was continuing to monitor the situation.

"Unless the union is prepared to behave in a sensible fashion in an industrial sense, the members' attitude could well change," Mr Gasteen said.

Meanwhile, the MBA yesterday moved in the SA Industrial Commission for a ruling aimed at opening the way for civil court action for damages against the BLF over the continuing steel fixers' dispute.

Since last year the dispute has included a six-week strike, stoppages every Wednesday, bans on overtime and demands for higher rates for steel-fixing sub-contractors.

The commission's Full Bench adjourned the matter until Wednesday.

The bench, headed by Mr Justice Stanley, would hear on Friday the union's appeal against the commission's rejection last week of the steel fixers' claim for reclassification and higher pay.

A building unions disputes committee will hold a series of meetings next week arising from concern at the threat of stand-downs of building workers from the effects of continued disruption by steel fixers.

Confusion as BLF Bills pass

From SHANE RODGERS

CANBERRA — Legislation to deregister the Builders Laborers' Federation was passed in Parliament yesterday in an atmosphere of confusion and controversy.

The legislation, introduced through two Bills, will immediately outlaw the union and allow its membership to be allocated to other unions.

The Bills now will go to the Governor-General, Sir Ninian Stephen, for assent.

In yesterday's dramatic events:

● A Government senator voted against the second and third readings of the deregistration Bill.

● A senior Minister mistakenly threatened the Bills would be withdrawn.

● Four Government backbenchers spoke out against the rapid acceptance of an Australian Democrats' amendment to the second Bill.

Senator Georges (ALP, Qld) broke Caucus solidarity and registered his vote against the second and third readings of the Bill.

Earlier, during debate, he called the Bill a "charade," saying industrial disputes could not be settled through legislation.

The Opposition unsuccessfully moved in the Senate for the compulsory non-reregistration period for the BLF to be extended from three to 10 years. The AD moved for five years.

The Minister for Finance, Senator Walsh, said the Government would not accept the amendment and it would be amended again in the House of Representatives if the Opposition and the AD forced it through.

Earlier, the Minister for Employment and Industrial Relations, Mr Willis, had said outside Parliament the Government would accept the amendments it subsequently did when the Bills were returned yesterday.

Four ALP backbenchers who criticised the timing and lack of consultation on the amendment were Mr Duncan (Makin, SA), Mr Scott (Hindmarsh, SA), Mr Kent (Hotham, Vic) and Ms Jakobsen (Cowan, WA).

Meanwhile, in MELBOURNE, the Victorian Government has taken Federal Court action against BLF general secretary Norm Gallagher over comments allegedly made after last week's Arbitration Commission declaration against the union.

Documents lodged yesterday afternoon by the Crown Solicitor allege Mr Gallagher committed two offences under Section 182 (1) of the Conciliation and Arbitration Act.

The documents allege Mr Gallagher used words calculated to bring the head of the Full Bench hearing the BLF deregistration case, Mr Justice Ludeke, and the Arbitration Commission, into disrepute.

Car chiefs in last-minute run to ease fringe-benefits tax

CANBERRA — Car-industry chiefs have made a last-minute bid to soften the impact of the Federal Government's car fringe-benefits tax.

The chief executives of Ford and GMH, Mr Brian Dix and Mr Chuck Chapman, met the Prime Minister, Mr Hawke, on Thursday night to discuss the tax which, they say, will cost 10,000 jobs in the vehicle-building and related industries.

The Holden Commodore and the Ford Falcon are considered the most at risk under the tax plan. These cars are produced in Adelaide and Melbourne.

Industry sources said the meeting was to press the car-makers' case and to plead for modifications to the tax.

"They wanted to inform the Government of the full significance of the modification outlined by the Treasurer, Mr Keating. The industry chiefs want the rate of the tax, proposed at an initial rate of 11 p.c. of the cost of the vehicle, to be dropped significantly.

The Federal Cabinet has considered the car-industry submission, presented by the Federated Chamber of Automotive Industries, plus other SA Government and Vehicle Builders Employees' Federation submissions.

The FCAI has told the Government that:

● Three-thousand jobs in the vehicle-building industry would be lost with an extra 7000 jobs lost indirectly.

● A hike in annual operating costs of company cars of between $2400 and $3300, increasing vehicle ownership costs by 29 p.c.

● Six-cylinder car sales would drop by 35,000 this year, with subsequent annual losses of 25,000 cars.

Georges faces Labor chop

CANBERRA — Queensland's veteran Left-wing firebrand Senator Georges faces expulsion from the Labor Party for voting against the Government's legislation on the Builders Laborers' Federation.

Senator Georges, 66, admitted last night he had done so in the full knowledge of the Labor Party rule that MPs were required to support the collective decision of the Labor Caucus.

He voted in the Senate against the second and third readings of the Bill to outlaw the BLF. In a direct challenge to the Government, he also insisted that his opposition be officially recorded.

"My action was taken as a matter of principle and tradition," he said.

"The Labor Party has a long record of supporting the trade-union movement and the workers, even if they are wrong."

Senator Georges has been a senator since 1968. He is now in his last term, which expires on June 30, 1988.

The Prime Minister, Mr Hawke, made it clear he thought Senator Georges could no longer be a member of the party.
